

Shelton State Community College • Stillman College
The University of Alabama

“Realizing the Dream throughout the Year”

THEATRICAL PERFORMANCE

Dwe Williams~Storyteller

Thursday, February 3
7:30 p.m., Bean-Brown Theatre
Shelton State Community College

Dwe Williams is a popular storyteller who weaves folktales for the enjoyment of her spellbound audiences. Ms. Williams appears in libraries, schools, festivals, community events, and conferences. Audiences love to hear about Ms. Lillie's Pecan Tree, David-David-David, and other folks like John Henry, Annie Christmas and Sassafras.

MARTIN LUTHER KING JR. DISTINGUISHED LECTURE SERIES

Alice Walker~Keynote Address “Women and Others” Symposium

Thursday, March 17
7:30 p.m., The University of Alabama
Morgan Auditorium

Novelist and poet, born in Eatonville, Georgia, Alice Walker has worked as a social worker, teacher, and lecturer. An accomplished poet, she is best known for her novels, notably The Color Purple (1982, Pulitzer), later made into a successful film, which tells the story of two black sisters in the segregated world of the Deep South. Ms. Walker will speak on racial and gender differences in American culture as the keynote speaker for the "Women and Others" Symposium sponsored by UA's College of Arts and Sciences in cooperation with the MLK Distinguished Lecture Series.

Dr. K.P.S. Kamath “Living the Principles of Gandhi and King”

Thursday September 27
1:30 p.m., The University of Alabama

Friday, September 28
11:00 a.m., Stillman College
7:00 p.m., Shelton State

Dr. Kamath, a physician by profession, is an active public speaker. Over the years he has offered numerous seminars on stress management and human rights issues. He embraces the ideals of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., and Mahatma Gandhi and is a firm believer in applying the principles of these great leaders to daily life.